WILL

This is the last will and testament of the class of 51. We hereby leave the following valuables to the Juniors.

Dale Benson leaves his prominent place on the basketball team to Squirt Diedrick. Good things come in little packages.

Jim Hartman leaves his interest in Burlington to Daryl Conro. He hopes Daryl has the same luck.

Virgil Beard leaves his stage managing ability to Ron Stevens. The play can't go on without a manager.

Don Bicknese leaves his curl to Dennis Benson. He thinks he needs it.

Marlyn Holze gladly leaves her chemistry ability to Phyllis Carlson.

Rita Getzelman leaves her interest in the lamp shade factory to Muriel Thornhill. That ought to double her wages.

Don Schultz leaves his poker ability to Bob Schneider. He can use it.

LaVerne Cleveland leaves the chrome on his car to John Blakslee. Will there be any car left without the chrome?

Bob Peterson leaves his appendix to Raymond Weberpal. Maybe that will fill up that space in his liver.

Nancy White wills her talkativeness to Irving Warrington. Maybe that will help him get over his shyness.

Jerry Herrmann leaves his class ring to Evelyn Workowski. Enough said.

Carolyn Thornhill leaves her typing accuracy to Skip Schultz. The typewriter too.

Diane Melms leaves her letter writing to army camps to Jeanette Getzelman.

Jackie Klick leaves her interest in baseball to Beverly Blank. Just the interest though.

George Seyller leaves his driving skill to Bob Cleveland.

Ron Conro leaves his newspaper editorship to John Kray.

Shirley Melms leaves her studying habits to Charles Reiser.

Bob Lollar leaves his musical ability to Duane Schultz. No more peace for the Juniors.

Arlene Engel wills her French--temper to Ruth Schiesher.

Allen Pfaffinger leaves his interest in the freshman class to Charles Herrmann.

Esther Tegtman leaves her dieting ability to Pat Acree. As if either of them needs it.

Doris Wehrhan leaves her bookkeeping accuracy to Carol Deihs. Who wouldn't be glad to have that?

James Sunderlage leaves his "band box" look to Luana Ross.

The History Class leaves Don Adams all of their A's.

And now friends this is Bob Lollar saying good bye. Due to technicalities this will be our last broadcast. This is "Capers from the Papers." Channel 51, station H.T.H.S. signing off.
